HER LACE LINGERIE.

Taken on a Mortgage to C. W. Ament.

THE CASE OF MRS. LOTTIE LOWENTHAL

Still Lingerling in the Courts—How "Substantial Justice" is Delayed in a Most Exasperating Manner.

An heiress who had her trousseau foreclosed under a chattel mortgage, is suing to recover it in the district court today. The case is entitled Lottie G. Lowenthal against C. W. Ament, proprietor of Vinewood Park. Mrs. Lowenthal is the only daughter of a wealthy Minneapolis, Minn. merchant, and when she married in 1885 her parents gave her household goods and dresses to the extent of at least $4,500. Few brides ever entered the state of matrimony with a brighter prospect for happiness. Mr. Lowenthal came to Topeka and embarked in the jewelry trade, but after a year or two failed in business. He determined to raise some money and forsake his wife. Accordingly he mortgaged all of their (or rather her) household goods to C. W. Ament for about $2,000, and skipped. In due time Ament foreclosed on the property and took everything Mrs. Lowenthal had, including her trousseau. Mrs. Lowenthal didn't mind the loss of her furniture and other household fixtures, but she objected to her elegant silk wedding dresses and lace underwear being thrown into the bargain, so she commenced the action which was tried today to recover this property. The value of the goods which she seeks to recover is modestly placed at $865, and the following are only a few of the items named in the bill of particulars:

One white embroidered velvet wedding dress, valued at $100; one pale blue silk dress, valued at $75; one pink satin wrapper, one fur lined circular, one garnet satin waist, one embroidered wrapper, one Modici lace skirt, set Modici lace underwear, set Torella lace underwear, set Valenciennes lace underwear, set French embroidered underwear, set embroidered underwear with tucking, four pair silk hose, three pair little thread hose, one real lace bed set, one raw silk bed set. The list also includes fine table linen, oil paintings and solid silver table service.

The case has been tried and a judgment secured, but it was taken to the supreme court and reversed on a technicality. S. B. Isenhart represents Mrs. Lowenthal and J. G. Waters defends Ament. J. B. Larimer sat as judge pro tem at the trial as Judge Hazen was once associated with Mr. Isenhart in the case. It was a jury trial.

Since the case was brought Mrs. Lowenthal removed to her old home in Minn.

COMING SHOWS.

Two Specialty Companies and a Repertory Company for Topeka.

The Huntley comedy company, supporting J. H. Huntley, will come to the Crawford for a week next Monday night.

There will be two matinees during the week, on Thursday, Thanksgiving Day, and Saturday. The San Antonio, Texas, papers speak highly of the company, and the name Huntley seems to be as familiar there as "Spooner" is in Kansas.

Mr. Huntley is not only an actor but is a true representative of the southern gentleman. For fifteen years this company has catered to the amusement lovers of the south, and this is its first trip north. The opening will be with the comedy "Hunted Down." It is said that the entire company is good.

The prices will be 10, 25 and 30 cents, and on Monday night the usual ladies' free concessions will prevail.

The Albion Empire Entertainment company will be at the Grand on Thanksgiving night. This is the company that played at Havill's in St. Louis last week.

MAY NOT LOSE THEM.

Several Attorneys Do Not Believe Western Counties Must Give Up Representatives.

The statement made in the STATE JOURNAL a few days ago that three western Kansas counties are to lose their representatives at the coming session of the legislature because of their vote falling below 200, the number required by the constitution, was made on the strength of general statements made by Attorney General Little in conversation with a JOURNAL reporter.

Several prominent attorneys and members of the state senate have, since the matter was brought to their attention, made an investigation, and now give it as their opinion that these western Kansas counties will be entitled to their representatives at the coming session.

The loss of votes in these counties will not cause them to lose their representatives when the state is redistricted at the special session of the legislature, to be called for that purpose in 1896 unless at the election directly preceding they fail to cast the required 200 number of votes.

State Senator Milton Brown says all of these counties will be entitled to representatives in the special session in 1896 when the reapportionment is to be made.

Workmen have been at work all this week getting the room in condition, and it will be ready to begin business on Saturday night, December 1st.

A good stage and several sets of scenes will be put in and the house will be seated with opera chairs. The first floor will seat 800 and the gallery about 150.
